Forum Questions Draw Fire, Humor

Election Audience Delighted As Candidates Put on Spot

By RAY BAINES

A large, spirited audience, dozens of contentious questions and four outspoken mayoral candidates combined to make last night's Crystal Garden election meeting one of the liveliest—and funniest—heard here in some time.

Run as a "Citizen's Forum" by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the meeting featured generous portions of heat and humor—the latter dished up by candidate Harry Haigh.

When asked from the floor what he thought about the Point Ellice Bridge repairs, Mr. Haigh said he thought "the bridge shouldn't even be there."

"The street leads nowhere. You can get to the same place by crossing the Johnson Street bridge. The two streets form a V at the brewery," said Mr. Haigh demonstrating with his hands. But it wasn't all fun. The arena, the bridge, the city manager, the reduced council all came in for their share of criticism and praise.

Candidate Aubrey Kent prophesied that with an eight-man council, "We will be wondering what No. 9 and 10 did all these years," when asked his stand on the reduction bylaw.

"I think it takes a lot of council's time to check up on this time to check up on this

Civic Lists Close

VANCOUVER, Dec. 6 (CP).—Nominations for community leaders closed today in 33 British Columbia cities, 25 municipalities and 37 villages. Elections will be held in most centres on Dec. 13.

Mayors of 14 cities and reeves of 10 municipalities and some village commissioners were returned by acclamation.

In Kelowna, Ald. J. J. Laod, who resigned in order to run for mayor, succeeded to the position vacated by Mayor W. B. Hughes-Games, and in Kamloops Ald. J. E. Fittwater succeeded to the mayoralty.

In Fraser Mills municipality all nominees were elected by acclamation. Reeve John Mackenzie was also elected to school board and Councillor Robert C. McMillan to the police commission.

Princeton, formerly the largest unorganized town in the province, will hold its first election Dec. 13. It was incorporated as a village Sept. 12.

Mayor W. D. MacArthur of Greenwood, was returned to office for the 10th time, and Mayor O. O. Stephenson of Grand Forks for the third time.

In Vancouver, city hall officials refused to accept the nomination of Vancouver lawyer Dudley McGee, the brother of the late Senator Gerry McGee, twice mayor of Vancouver. McGee failed to meet property regulation officials said.

Jonathan W. Cornett, three times mayor of Vancouver, has entered the aldermanic race.

At Coquitlam, the big election issue has become the question of separate schools. Coquitlam includes Maillardville, the centre of the Roman Catholic school dispute.

Egypt Police To Keep Arms

CAIRO, Dec. 6 (CP).—The Egyptian governor of Suez, Ibrahim Zaki el-Kholi Bey, said tonight he is "strongly rejecting" a British demand to disarm Egyptian police in that canal zone city.

The British military have accused Egyptian police as well as nationalist-minded civilians of instigating clashes in the zone in which 20 British troops have been killed, Egyptians, with greater casualties, blame Britain.

Egyptian Minister of State Abdel Meguid Abdel Haak has been given command of all "liberation" squads with a fund of about $100,000 to organize military training.

The government claimed it was forced to take this action because the squads contain "dangerous elements, including ex-convicts... spreading a spirit of chaos detrimental to the country's reputation."

The Egyptian government also announced it had recalled an Egyptian military mission, about 50 strong, now training in Britain.

Meantime, a British spokesman said passage of heavy oil tankers in and out of Suez has been banned indefinitely. This will mean an oil shortage in Cairo.

Animal Case Puts Comedy in Court

By TREVOR COLLINS

Steel doors in the city lockup clanged shut yesterday on an elderly man who would rather spend three days in jail than pay a $15 fine for harboring two horses, two goats and two pigs.

But not before he threw the courtroom into a state of confusion, argued with Magistrate H. C. Hall, and called the city prosecutor "laddie."

Robert G. Jackson, 1629 Rockland, pleaded guilty to the charge laid under the City Health By-law and was fined $15 or three days in jail.

"I won't pay, I'll take the three days. Where is the jail?" shouted the irate horseman as the magistrate passed sentence.

Sgt. William Andrews, court officer, walked over to assist the excited man to a chair.

"Your honor, this man is pushing me around," he shouted. "Unhand me."

"But you wished to go to jail, snapped the magistrate.

"But what about my horse?" Jackson pleaded as he was led downstairs to the lockup.

His first appearance at the police station before court caused a flurry of excitement that promised a lively morning session.

Dressed out in high boots, riding pants and an Indian sweater, he galloped down the street, dismounted and tied the horse to a vacant lot where it was tied up to await Jackson's return.

Jackson's was the second case to appear on the list.

Armed with a summons and other papers, he took his place.

Dramatically he got in the first punch:

"HOT IN HERE"

"Your honor, may I take off my sweater. It's hot in here."

The startled magistrate agreed and Jackson removed his heavy sweater to reveal a brightly colored cowboy-type shirt.

The 74-year-old man carefully adjusted his pince-nez glasses and prepared to do battle with the law.

Jackson. The crowd suppressed a laugh and the magistrate glared.

Jackson continued to wander around the courtroom until he finally settled down to tell his story. Magistrate Hall agreed to a request that Jackson speak for three minutes.

Accused cited other instances where horses are kept on city property, he said. "Manure—think of it—manure on city property."

He added there was a city by-law that says roosters mustn't crow in Victoria.

"But they do," Jackson said.

Meanwhile the horse waited patiently in the vacant lot and the shaggy dog crept quietly up to the main entrance of the police station. It barked mournfully.

BIT OF HEAVEN

"I am charged with keeping a menagerie," Jackson continued. "I say that when the children see that horse, it is a little bit of heaven."

City prosecutor James Proudfoot leapt to his feet and said there had been many complaints regarding Mr. Jackson.

"Speak up laddie," interrupted Jackson. "I'm deaf."

"Mr. Jackson also has a manure pile," continued Mr. Proudfoot. "I wish to give notice if something is not done I intend to issue a new summons to this man."

Magistrate Hall attempted to ask Jackson a question but was interrupted.

"You will please answer my question," he said as Jackson continued to argue with Mr. Proudfoot.

"I'm all attention your honor," Jackson said, with his hands to his ear.

"Are you prepared to get rid of these animals and comply with the by-law?" the magistrate asked.

Jackson started to argue his case again.

"Just a minute. This is not a debating society," Magistrate Hall said glaring at the smiling faces in the courtroom.

Jackson Faces Second Charge Over Posters

Robert G. Jackson, 74, 1629 Rockland, is slated to appear in city police court at 10 a.m. today to face a charge of putting up a sign on his property without a permit from the city.

Charge was laid by city building inspector William Oosterink.

Signs on the Jackson property are "Harrison for mayor" posters. P. J. Sinnott, local lawyer, said he will appear in court on behalf of Jackson.

C. L. Harrison, former city prosecutor, said he had nothing to do with the erection of the sign.

"He is doing it on his own behalf as a private citizen," Mr. Harrison declared.

Whether Nervo, chairman of the secret discussions, will have any success in bringing the two sides together is questionable.

A realistic look at the situation indicates that about the only point on which Russia and the west are likely to agree is the formation of a U.N. disarmament commission to replace the old atomic energy commission and the convention arms commission.

Membership in the new body would include U.N. security council countries plus Canada, which rates a spot because of her important part in development of atomic energy.

Russia has opposed a previous suggestion that the two commissions be merged because the proposal referred to the U.N. plan for atomic control which has always had violent Soviet opposition.

There were indications today, however, that the Soviet now might agree to go along with the new commission.

Nervo Will Try To End Impasse

PARIS, Dec. 6 (CP).—Luis Padilla Nervo, president of the United Nations Assembly, indicated tonight he will attempt to break the east-west disarmament impasse by private talks with Soviet and western representatives.

The four powers—Britain, France, the United States and Russia—completed closed disarmament talks today without making any progress on major points of difference over arms reduction, proposed banning of the atomic bomb and methods of inspection to insure that disarmament is carried out.

They will meet Friday to attempt to prepare a report for the United Nations political committee which voted last week to set up the four-power sub-committee.

Whether Nervo, chairman of the secret discussions, will have any success in bringing the two sides together is questionable.

In a wire from Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew yesterday, fund officials learned chances were good that the troops would get their airlifted smokes before Christmas.

The wire read: "Believe it possible to send cigarettes by air through national defense."

And as such arrangements and discussions go on, the fund continues to mount at a gratifying rate. After adding yesterday's total contributions of $128.00, the grand total came to $835.00.

Allied Negotiators Reverse Position

MUNSAN, Korea, Dec. 7 (Friday) (AP).—Allied truce negotiators reversed themselves today and told the Communists they are willing to discuss withdrawal of troops from Korea.

The U.N. command in all previous statements had held that withdrawal of troops was a political matter to be discussed on higher levels by the belligerent governments after an armistice.

The Communists in yesterday's meeting had insisted Allies must speed the talks on the issue of supervising the truce before the Reds would be willing to take up the problem of exchanging prisoners of war.

A U.N. command spokesman called the Communist demand "blackmail."

A Seoul dispatch says the United Nations air force, queen of battles in Korea since the war began, polished its crown Thursday with new air fights and a special frontline blitz against Red artillery.

The ground war was quiet for the ninth straight day since armistice negotiators agreed on a provisional cease-fire line. The infantry had little to do except beat off an occasional Communist probe and duck Chinese shells.

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 6 (CP).—Wild street fighting raged for five hours today between 2,000 police, backed by Nationalist civilians, and 5,000 Communist-led youths who shouted death threats against Premier Mohammad Mossadegh.

The police and Nationalist side won the battle. At least five persons were killed and more than 200 injured.

Hundreds of Communists were arrested. A Red-front peace partisan headquarters, pro-Communist newspapers and a theatre were wrecked by the furious Nationalists.

Nationalist mobs also wrecked offices of four newspapers that are non-Communist although opposed to Mossadegh's government.

The Communists set off the rioting with a forbidden march on Parliament soon after daybreak.

With shouts of "death to Mossadegh," the mob challenged guards posted to prevent demonstrations. Deputies excitedly watched the marchers confront about 1,000 troops posted with automatic weapons.

The government claimed it was forced to take this action because the squads contain "dangerous elements, including ex-convicts... spreading a spirit of chaos detrimental to the country's reputation."

The Egyptian government also announced it had recalled an Egyptian military mission, about 50 strong, now training in Britain.

ALL ABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

"The little grey-haired wife, who for the last eight years has entertained Christmas shoppers outside a department store in Vancouver will not be there this year," said a recent news item.

"Mrs. Violet Wells, who for the last eight years has entertained Christmas shoppers outside a department store in Vancouver will not be there this year," said a recent news item.

policy which bans all types of entertainment on the streets.

Mrs. Wells must be the lady who pumps the little hand organ and sings hymns. She wasn't Metropolitan Opera timbre, and I can take my hymns or leave them alone, but I'm sorry to see her go.

Undoubtedly the bearded old man with his squeaky violin will also be hustled away. I would like to be able to report that he was a world-famous violinist who slipped from fame to squalor, but I can't.

The fact is that the wails from his fiddle were a pain in the ear.

And the fiddler, for all his saintly and patriarchal air, was a crusty old boy who rasped abuse at cafe waitresses when his coffee was a shade too cool.

The streets of Vancouver will be neater, and also duller, for his absence. I'm sorry to see him go, because he was one of the diminishing band of eccentrics who lend flavor to a city, and carry the mind back to an older, less sanitary but more colorful time.

Long ago, merchants and minstrels who plied their trade on the streets were not eccentrics at all. They were doing the socially accepted thing.

In certain less advanced places of the world, the old freedom still exists.

I have seen dark women offering their baskets of betel-nut, and heard a blind beggar twanging his one-string fiddle, on the streets of Kandy in Ceylon; and Africans naked to the waist with trays of melons for sale under the palms of Sierra Leone.

It's a long way from those countries to modern London, but amongst the glittering shops and offices and underground railways of that great city you can still find men selling roast chestnuts and barrel organs grinding out racy tunes.

You can stroll through the mob down Petticoat Lane and hear cheapjack and pitchmen crying their wares. You can buy jellied eels from a barrow on the street.

Of course we will never have those things, and we don't want them. When not spontaneous, they are absurd. But it is amusing to compare the casual tolerance of older countries with our zeal to make all things neat, right and colorless.

Zoning rules, trades licenses and laws aimed against street music are all worthy things in themselves. But they blend into the grey fog of uniformity and anti-septic dullness which threatens to cover us like a shroud.

Radio License Peddlers Out of Work Next April

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (CP).—The federal transport department plans to discontinue next April the house-to-house sale of radio licenses.

G. C. W. Browne, controller of telecommunications, in the transport department, said today that the practice will be discontinued because of the difficulty of obtaining door-to-door canvassers to sell the $250 annual licenses on a commission basis.

Mr. Browne made his statement in testimony before the radio committee of the Commons. The committee interrupted questions of CBC officials to hear the evidence of transport department officials.

Starting with the next fiscal year, said Mr. Browne, people must go to post offices, radio dealers, banks or other establishments to purchase licenses.

On discontinuing the house-to-house sale, the transport department will hire 50 men to check on licenses and launch prosecutions against non-license holders.

Mr. Browne suggested the Radio Act might be amended to provide a minimum fine of $10 for convicted non-license holders. There have been cases where a fine of 50 cents was imposed and others where sentence was suspended.

He believed that with a minimum fine of $10, the department would no longer be faced with a large number of prosecutions now running at the rate of 11,000 or 12,000 a year, he said.

Dapper Red's Togs Advertise His Job

WITH THE NINTH CORPS IN KOREA, Dec. 6 (AP).—A two-word statement by an immaculate Chinese soldier proves that all armies are alike—at least in channels of supply.

The well-dressed prisoner was clad in the finest double-breasted, full-length field overcoat yet seen by United Nations forces. He also sported brand new combat shoes, socks and winter cap.

In addition, he wore several layers of new fatigue clothing and underwear.

One curious bystander asked: "What's your job with your outfit?"

Without hesitation the smiling Red proudly supplied the already suspected answer: "Supply sergeant."

Atomic Artillery Claimed Developed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP).—Gen. J. Lawton Collins said tonight the United States has developed atomic artillery and he indicated that such weapons may be ready for combat use in the "not too distant" future.

The U.S. army's chief of staff said atomic weapons will not revolutionize ground warfare but they will "greatly enhance the power of defense" and be of greater value in defense than in attack.

Collins added the army already is making plans for the day when atomic artillery and guided missile battalions will replace some of the conventional heavy artillery.

In Memphis, Tenn., Admiral William M. Fechteler said U.S. carrier-based planes could deliver atomic bombs on any target within 600 miles of the sea.

Fechteler, who is chief of naval operations, told a Navy League meeting the U.S. navy's striking power, with atomic bombs, is smaller and lighter. And he suggested that more ships in the navy's big moth-ball fleet might be converted into guided missile launching ships.

Collins declined to say when the army expects to have tactical atomic weapons.

He made his statements in a radio recording broadcast tonight.

He also said:

He still believes there will be an armistice in Korea.

If truce talks fail, it is possible the allies will bring greater sea power to bear against the Chinese.

The United Nations' defense line in Korea is so strong that it will hold "under any foreseeable development that is likely to occur."

Atomic defenses are strong enough to hold against Soviet attack.

Discussing atomic artillery, Collins said: "We have developed such a weapon now. The time as to when it would be practicable to put it into use on a large scale, I don't want to go into because needless to say, any potential enemy would like to have that information."

The Dachsuhnd, originating in Germany, was long used in hunting foxes and badgers.

Interior Loggers Offered Top Pay

VANCOUVER, Dec. 6 (CP).—Interior British Columbia loggers will receive more than their contract brothers if the tentative contract agreement announced here today receives ratification.

The tentative agreement covering 6,000 loggers calls for an increase of 20 cents an hour, retroactive to Sept. 1, the International Woodworkers of America (I.W.A.) announced.

That would bring the basic interior rate to $4.30—half a cent an hour above the coastal wage.

The agreement already ratified by the Woodworkers' Union policy committee now goes to a referendum vote by the general membership, expected to take about 10 days. It must also be ratified by the 63 operators.

Under the tentative agreement the union would get an improved security clause and a cost-of-living bonus of one cent for every point rise in the cost-of-living index.

Field Day for Civic Voters

NOMINATIONS yesterday in districts comprising the Greater Victoria area paved the way for spirited elections in all save one of them, Oak Bay, where an entire civic slate was returned by acclamation. A signal honor was paid thus to Reeve P. A. Gibbs and his Oak Bay colleagues on municipal boards by re-election unopposed in times when the contest for public office is acute. Reeve Joseph Casey, of Saanich, shared a like honor on a personal basis, as did Alderman-elect James E. Neely, and School Trustees-elect A. W. Trevett and Kenneth Leeming, in Victoria City. All other posts are to be contested, with nowhere a brisker election battle than in Victoria City where the liveliest mayoralty contest for years is nearing its climax in polling next week.

This is a healthy sign on all accounts, and if it is backed up by a real response by qualified electors at the polls it can do much to re-energize a lively, sustained and intelligent interest in municipal affairs throughout the year to come. The contested offices in Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Central Saanich have been the occasion of spirited campaigning, in the course of which public issues are coming to the fore being analyzed and weighed. Add to that larger municipal voters' lists than ever before, and the stage is set for a field-day for the qualified municipal electors next week. In as much as it is the candidates who make such a condition possible, they are entitled to a fair hearing on their efforts. If the voters match that spirit, municipal government in the Greater Victoria area can be greatly improved.

It is a tradition that federal and provincial politics are excluded, and very wisely so. The only issues are civic ones, and on them there is sufficient divergence of viewpoint to sharpen wits and to bring out the best solutions and the most capable individuals for the job that has to be done. It would be idle to discount the dissatisfaction of the times, or to discount too readily its reflection in a more protest vote in certain instances. On the other hand the electors themselves are more long-headed than they are generally given credit for, and it will be up to them to choose wisely men and women in whom they can place their reliance and their trust. Every able-bodied voter should cast a ballot on polling day, for this is public business and its results will rule for a year.

Piling It On

MR. John Fisher, a C.B.C. commentator, says Canadians should stop sniping at themselves—and then proceeds not merely to snipe but to fire a broadside at his fellow citizens. Canadians he accuses of being "copy cats, pussy-footers, lacking color and sometimes phony." Mr. Fisher himself is of course an expert on color. His broadcasts, and vivid and interesting they invariably are, never lack for this element. Sometimes they contain little else.

Other folk other ways, however. Not everyone likes extravagance, of dress, habit or speech, and we think Mr. Fisher is extravagant in his condemnation. If Canadians really were copy cats, pussy-footers and phony, they would be nincompoops, and we do not think Canadians are nincompoops. They are quieter than he likes, and could perhaps do with a little more self-assertion, but they are not necessarily possessed of an inferiority complex.

The C.B.C. man thinks we should develop a balance between British dignity and American extraversion. This isn't too easy to do, but in one sense it is being done. It is precisely the heavy influences of these two nations, however, that makes the evolution of a distinctive Canadian pattern so difficult. Obviously even a happy mean struck between the two leaves us open to the charge of being copy-cats.

The Royal tour may have been, as Mr. Fisher criticizes, a parade of stiffness compared to the reception in Washington, but if so only a handful of Canadians, the official brasshats, are to blame. Neither the principals of the tour nor the people at large were the least bit stuffy. As to that, we tremble to think of the spectacles inherent in a full-scale Royal tour across the border.

Mr. Fisher would do more good, and gain his apparent objective more easily, if he confined his own sniping to moderate terms. In the final analysis, Canadians must be themselves if they are to amount to anything. While far from perfect, they are to date, we think fairly good representatives of the human race.

Nothing to Worry About

GOVERNMENTS generally have a reputation for being quick to grab the individual's money but slow and difficult when he tries to get some of it back. Just now, however, the federal department administering old-age pensions is running contrary to form. It is practically begging people to accept the $40 pension to which everyone reaching the age of 70 will be entitled next month.

Officials of the Department of Health and Welfare in Ottawa have voiced "concern" over the fact that 50,000 to 60,000 Canadians of eligible age have not yet applied for the pension, "for some reason or other." Their lieutenants in the provinces appear to be equally perturbed. In searching for reasons why anyone should turn down the state's proffered bounty, the possibility that many self-reliant people don't need it and don't want it seems to have escaped them.

The department has a duty to take all steps necessary to acquaint the public with

The facts of the new universal pension, and that has been done. The conditions have been amply publicized these many weeks in all mediums of public information. It is safe to assume that by now those who need the pension have applied for it, and worry over the remainder seems wasted.

There should be nothing astonishing in the fact that out of Canada's total over-70 population 50,000 or 60,000 are independently provided for in their old age. Well-to-do elderly people who accepted the pension would have to show it as income and pay increased tax accordingly. There must be many who see little point in going through the business of claiming $40 a year which they would have to pay back to the government in large part as income tax.

On the whole it should be reassuring rather than an occasion for governmental worry to find that there are several thousand elderly Canadians who still feel able to take care of themselves.

A GOOD DEED

Sir—On Tuesday morning a little lady of 84 years spoke to me in the T. Eaton Co. store. She was on her way to a meeting to hand in a shopping bag full of hand-made toys for poor children in London, England. In my pleasure at meeting such a happy and active lady I let her go without asking her name and address.

If you would kindly print this she may see it and I hope write to me.

HELPED IN FLOOD

Sir—May I express my gratitude for the help given by kind and willing friends and neighbors this past week end, when the storms endangered my home.

They worked so hard on Saturday morning and again on Saturday night and Sunday morning, and built another sea wall.

I also acknowledge very gratefully the advice and assistance given by the city engineers.

It was all a very great help to me and is greatly appreciated.

NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE

Sir—In reply to a question asked by a correspondent whose letter appeared in your issue of Dec. 4, the Victoria Civic Non-Partisan League consists of citizens whose whole object is to obtain the consent of worthy and capable citizens to stand for civic office and when that consent is given, to make every effort to ensure their election. By so doing it believes that the much desired improvement in civic government will result.

Membership in the league is open to any person eligible to vote for the office of mayor and other elective offices. It is not restricted to any particular group and today its membership is representative of all sections of our community. At a general meeting held before the annual civic elections these members select in a democratic manner, the candidates they believe are worthy of support and afterwards work for their election.

The league believes that its objects and aims are worthy of support by all who are interested in good civic government and welcomes any constructive criticism that would tend to make it a more potent factor in our community life.

WALTER M. WALKER.

"MACBETH"

Sir—From the Hollywood point of view the movie "Macbeth" is undoubtedly a picture with a big "B" which, as a director told me when I was down there recently, is all that Hollywood wants. Perhaps Shakespeare, the business man, who knew "box office" when he wrote it, as he always did, might have approved it in line with his constant proposition that all things change and eventually disappear. But Welles' Macbeth steps out of Shakespeare, an artificial uncreated character without feeling, so that one couldn't sympathize with him with either sorrow or hate. In all of Shakespeare's plays there is whimsy, beauty and the adumbrated sense that we are "such stuff as dreams are made on."

In Shakespeare there is beauty even in such stark brutal tragedy as Macbeth and Lady Macbeth's sleep-walking always had a quality of dark sorrow. In the Welles' production she is just a woman gone mad—and not very gracefully at that.

There were some youths who laughed aloud during her antics, had, no doubt, but almost excusable.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

It seems to be generally recognized that if a Western Alliance army is to be created in Europe the Germans should play a part in their own defence, hence the current move to fit them into an international force. Hence for one has misgivings about this even if realism endorses the idea. She fears that in no time at all Germany will once more be her own militant powerful self. She remembers how a mere two decades after total defeat in one war Germany was ready to challenge the world in another.

A striking example of the capacity of Europeans to recover quickly from chaos is to be found in another field, that of Association football, in the composite person of the Anglican team which drew 2-2 with England ten days ago. Some soccer experts across the Atlantic go so far as to rate Austria as the best team in all Europe today, and that would therefore mean the worst.

Certainly a note of apprehension had been evident all season on the part of soccer England. Where once the game with Scotland was the ultimate test, this year Austria was the chief threat. Month after month English selectors experimented with various players in search of an eleven that would repel the Austrians. Yet Austria is but a few short years away from a holocaust that left it in economic, political and spiritual collapse.

England had a prized record to keep and she managed, but only just, to keep it. No foreign soccer team, meaning from outside the British Isles, has ever defeated England on English soil. Austria looked as though she might. Twice within the last 12 months she beat Scotland, the holder of the British championship, and her single goal victory at Hampden Park last year ended Scotland's unbroken record against foreign invaders.

In two years past the Austrian side has piled up an imposing score, defeating Yugoslavia 7-2 and Belgium 8-1 among other notable triumphs. Playing a classical game reminiscent of the strategy of old-time English Eleven's, the Austrians have appeared on the international soccer scene with the impact of a bombshell.

In the overall sense, more puzzling even than the rise of Austria is the eminence in the post-war years of many European teams—Poland, Germany, Russia, France, et al. Soccer has been so long the traditional game of the British Isles, big league competition has thrived there for half a century and more, that it is astonishing to find almost any of these continental eleven's now matching strides with the best English and Scottish sides that can be chosen.

A nation seldom attains top-flight skill in international competition of any kind without comparable practice and equality of playing opportunity and conditions. While undoubtedly soccer has been played all over Europe for many years—Germany first sent a side to England in 1901 and Steve Bloomer, famous English professional, was a Berlin coach prior to 1914—the game can scarcely have functioned there on the high operational level of the British Isles over the same period of time. It certainly did not do so in Poland and Russia.

The advance in technical skill and playing power of these continental teams is therefore worth pondering, suggesting as it does the capacity to advance equally well in more militant fields of endeavour. It is not surprising then that doubts have been expressed about the wisdom of resurrecting the German army. Given another two decades of peace Germany might well emulate the peace Germany 1918 and 1938, and 20 years from now emerge as old as a European power to be feared. Europeans are not to be dismissed as weaklings. They are, all of them, a tough and hardy breed with great power of endurance and recovery.

"New Freedoms" in Western Germany

By W. N. EWER, From London

THE agreement between the German federal chancellor and the foreign ministers of Britain, France and the U.S.A. is the last stage but one in the process by which in the words of the Potsdam Agreement of 1945, the people of Western Germany will be able to take their place among the free and peaceful peoples of the world. That it is still not the final stage, and that it applies only to the people of Western Germany, is due to causes which are not under the control either of the Western Powers, or of the German Federal Government, or of the German people.

That there are criticisms of the new agreement, both in Germany and in some of her western neighbor countries, was only to be expected. There are many Germans who, naturally enough, are impatient for the achieving of their complete independence from all foreign controls, who feel that the pace of the evolution from the allied military government imposed on them in 1945 has been too slow. There are many people in the western countries which were overrun and occupied by Hitler's armies who have misgivings about the possibility of a revived German nationalism, freed from all control from outside, turning again to thoughts of aggression and conquest.

But the evolution itself, the gradual restoration of full self-government in that portion of Germany which has been in the control of the Western democracies, has been logical and inevitable. In the first place, there are the promises of Potsdam. "It is the intention of the allies that the German people be given the opportunity to prepare for the eventual reconstruction of their life as a democratic and peaceful basis. If their own efforts are directed to this end, it will be possible for them in due course to take their place among the free and peaceful peoples of the world."

Even if that pledge had not been formally given the Western democracies could not have done otherwise. There were, at bottom, only two conceivable policies. The one would have been to keep Germany for an indefinite period under complete allied control and occupation, under the sort of benevolent external despotism which had to be set up in the early days after the collapse of the Nazi regime because there was nothing German which could at once take over the work of even local government. But that, though theoretically conceivable, was never practically possible. Not only would it have been impossible to maintain such a system in the face of an inevitable growing German resentment and resistance without recourse to methods of repression which no democracy can either practise or sanction; but democracy cannot, of its very nature, refuse democracy to other communities.

The Western powers were bound to allow and encourage the creation of democratic institutions in Western Germany, and to do so as rapidly as possible. And democratic institutions imply self-government. Democracy and external control cannot exist together. The one is a denial of the other. They are incompatible.

So from the moment when, in accordance with the Potsdam program, local self-government on democratic principles was restored to Western Germany, the decision had in fact been made. The process had begun and was bound to move forward to its complete fulfilment. It could be only a question of timing, of when the "due course" of which the Potsdam Agreement spoke would have been run.

Not many people I think, Allied or German, believed six years ago that the term would prove to be so small. Not only because all our thinking was then so conditioned by the emotions of a war which was only just ended, because the restoration of any kind of German self-government then appeared a labor of Hercules. There was not only economic chaos. There was an administrative vacuum. The hold of the Nazi party had been so complete that when it collapsed there was nothing to take its place. Local officers of the allied military government, had simply to take charge of their districts and run them somehow, get some sort of public services working, with such German co-operation (often willing but completely inexperienced) as was to hand. (Germany owes a big debt to hundreds of forgotten allied officers and men who helped their enemies, so well in the days of the great collapse.

Those who knew the country in those days of chaos and breakdown hardly dared hope that economic recovery and political reorganization could be carried through in so short a time as six years. It is a great achievement of which both the Germans and the occupation authorities may well be proud.

At the same time it would be foolish to ignore the fact that there may be anxious times ahead. The new German democracy is very young. It has yet to prove its ability and its competence to deal effectively and democratically with the big problems which face it. And there is always the unhappy fact that the evolution to self-government has only come in the West. The country is still divided. The national unity for which every German yearns is still achievable. That fact has its own dangers.

We should I suppose have foreseen, though we could even so hardly have prevented, what was bound to happen in the Russian-occupied East. The Russians, whatever their promises at Potsdam, could not have acted otherwise than they did. Just as it is impossible for democracies to sponsor or practise dictatorship, so it is impossible for a dictatorship to sponsor or encourage democracy. The precedent and example would be too dangerous. From the time when they enforced in practice a complete partition between East and West, it was certain that the Soviet Government would enforce upon the people of its own zone a regime similar to those it was already enforcing upon the satellite states of Eastern Europe. The six years which have allowed the growth of democratic institutions in Western Germany have imposed totalitarian institutions upon Eastern Germany. All effective power is in the hands of a tightly disciplined party, under the orders of a small group of leaders who are themselves the obedient servants of the "great leader" in the Kremlin. It is the negation alike of democracy and of independence, and its ultimate basis is not the will of the German people but the bayonets of the Russian army.

The new freedoms then are limited to the territories of the West and to the millions of refugees who have sought asylum in the West from the Soviet zone and from the "people's democracies." Nor is it yet possible to see how the process is to be completed and the promises of Potsdam fulfilled throughout the whole of a reunited Germany. One thing is sure. Neither the leaders nor the people of Western Germany, much as they may desire reunion, are prepared to purchase unity by the sacrifice of liberty.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

A FEW seasons ago, one of the largest department stores in Canada devoted a lot of money and space to promoting a "Do your Christmas shopping early" campaign. Instead of improving a little the situation, the campaign had the reverse effect—because that year the store had the worst experience of its history. Everybody seemed to have put off shopping to the last minute. The store executives came to the conclusion that the public, impressed by the campaign, decided it would have the desired effect on everybody else, and that there would be plenty of room for them alone the day or two before Christmas.

The inescapable fact appears to be that the public actually chooses to suffer the torments, the exhaustion and the frustration of last-minute Christmas shopping. It is a festival of fatigue, a carnival of confusion, a jubilee of flutters that is somehow embedded in the average person's mind as part of the ritual of Christmas. I am told by trained business psychologists that out of the thousands of women and men who jam the stores on the eve of Christmas are hundreds who do not shop at all, who have no intention of shopping, who have done all their shopping perhaps weeks before, but who cannot resist the attraction of those milling mobs of Christmas-tide, and are drawn into the melee as moths are drawn to a light.

The fact that the weather may be terrible has no effect upon us; this is the time of swarming, as the bees swarm. And, like the bees, we are afflicted by a sort of stupor in our swarming, so that we move about the throne in a daze.

Looking Back

Through Colonist Files

25 YEARS AGO—With the end of the year in sight, the city engineer's department has a surplus in hand of $38,679. The appropriation for this year was $239,007.

50 YEARS AGO—The Chinese gambling dens, having refused to obey the mandate of the police commissioners to close, were raided yesterday by Chief Langley. In one hall alone 39 gamblers were arrested.

85 YEARS AGO—High Sheriff Adairson has given public notice that on Tuesday next, in front of the police barracks, he will hold a nomination for two members to represent the city and Esquimalt in the Legislative Council.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

"Don't mix furniture of different periods in the same room," advises an interior decorator. In other words, don't put the new pieces in with the stuff that's so antique that it's paid for.

By keeping her mouth shut for five minutes, a woman can make a man spend the rest of the day wondering what it was he said.

Just trying to make conversation with an old-timer at a filling station out in an arid portion of the West, a tourist commented: "Looks like rain." "I sure hope so," sighed the old-timer. "Not for myself," he hastened to explain, "but for my boy here. I've seen rain."

TRUE BILL

A lady who decided to buy a suit in a New York store the other day found she had her chequebook but nothing to identify her signature. "Do you happen to have a new one-dollar bill?" she asked the manager. He did, and she pointed out her signature in the left-hand bottom corner: Georgia Neese Clark, Treasurer of the United States.

"The average Japanese family," says a writer, "spends most of its income." East is east and west is west, and nowhere do both ends meet.

TENSE

Calling for her car at the garage, a woman paid the repair bill and drove off. She could have no more than turned the corner before she was back again, demanding to see the manager. "What can I do for you, madam?" he asked.

The customer held up her hands for his inspection, revealing what had been, a few minutes before, spotless white gloves, but now covered with black grease.

"Do tell me," she asked with cloying sweetness, "what do your mechanics use for towels when they run out of steering wheels?"

EVERYBODY WELCOME

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (TNS).

Even the cockiest members of the 15,000-man Japanese task force found it hard to believe. Six carriers, two battleships, two cruisers and two destroyers, bulging with men and machines of death, had sailed nearly 4,000 miles across the Pacific—undetected by the intended victim.

Now it was 6 a.m. Dec. 7, 1941, and the carriers were plunging at full speed toward Oahu, 200 miles to the south. The Pacific literally shook with the thunder of 90 "Kates" (with bombs and torpedoes), 50 "Vals" (dive bombers with armor-piercing bombs) and 50 "Zekes" (fighters heavy with strafing bullets) warming up on carrier decks.

What was happening at that moment in history to the men who were destined to play vital roles in the bloody years that followed?

Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The former army chief of staff had come out of busy retirement the previous July to accept the difficult job of a Far Eastern command.

It was shortly before 4 a.m. (Monday, Dec. 8) when he reached for the ringing telephone in his bedroom in the penthouse suite of the Manila Hotel. He threw on his clothes, ordered his staff alerted and to rush to his headquarters. Soon his staff was around him as he paced back and forth in front of a teletype machine.

Brig. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the man who was to lead the "crusade in Europe," had just been promoted temporarily from colonel. His permanent rank at the time was lieutenant colonel. He had just come in from the big Louisiana manoeuvres and was completely exhausted.

As he tells it in his book "Crusade in Europe" (Doubleday):

"On the (early) afternoon of December 7 at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, tired out from the long and exhausting staff work of the manoeuvres and their aftermath, I went to bed with orders that under no circumstances was I to be disturbed.

DREAM SHATTERED

"My dreams were of a two-week leave I was going to take, during which my wife and I were going to West Point to spend Christmas with our plebe son, John. But even dreams like these—and my strict orders—could be shattered with impunity by the aide who brought the news that we were at war."

Brig. Gen. Omar Bradley: The commander of the army infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., was in an easy chair, reading the Sunday papers. He got up with a sigh when the phone rang. It was his G-3 (operations officer).

Bradley went immediately to his office and remained there accepting calls and issuing necessary instructions until 2 a.m. Monday.

Maj. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright: It was about 4 a.m. at his Philippine post. The long lean cavalryman who was to become the symbol of the American prisoner of war groped for the ringing phone in the darkness of his bedroom.

"The cat has jumped," an aide said.

Sen. Harry S. Truman (D., Mo.): Drowsy after a noonday Sunday meal, the senator took off his coat and shoes and lay down on his bed in the Sinclair Pennant Hotel, Columbia, Mo.

While he slept the Japanese planes were sinking, capturing or burning eight U.S. battleships; three cruisers, three destroyers and four auxiliary vessels; destroying 188 of the 192 planes in working order at neighboring fields, killing 2,403 and wounding 1,178.

The phone on the night table rang and the senator picked it up. The voice on the other end was that of a deputy U.S. marshal named Roy Webb, a friend, calling from Cross Timbers, Mo.

"Have you heard the radio?" Webb asked.

The senator said no, and Webb gave him the straight news, Truman, at first, couldn't believe it.

As soon as Truman reached

Washington he called on chief of staff Gen. George C. Marshall and volunteered for active duty.

Marshall looked at the reserve colonel standing before him and shook his head.

"This is a young man's war, senator. They don't need old goats like us. You can serve the nation better in the senate."

Winston Churchill: The Prime Minister of Great Britain was working nearly through the entire previous night. But, about 8:30 p.m. he led his little group of guests into the dining room at Chequers and waved them to chairs.

TUNES IN RADIO

Shortly before 9 p.m. the prime minister stirred himself out of his silence and called "Sayers," summoning the butler. He ordered the man to bring him the '815 portable radio which Harry Hopkins had presented to him, and the butler placed it on the table before him. Churchill lifted the cover of the set.

Churchill tells the story in "The Grand Alliance" (Houghton Mifflin):

"I turned on my small wireless set shortly after the nine o'clock news had started. There were a number of items about the fighting on the Russian front and on the British front in Libya, at the end of which some few sentences were spoken regarding an attack by the Japanese on American shipping at Hawaii. I got up from the table and walked through the hall to the office, which was always at work. I asked for a call to the President. The ambassador (Winant) followed me out, and, imagining I was about to take some irrevocable step, said, 'Don't you think you'd better get confirmation first?'"

"In two or three minutes Mr. Roosevelt came through. Mr. President, what's this about Japan?" "It's quite true," he replied. "They have attacked us at Pearl Harbor. We are all in the same boat now."

Emperor Hirohito: The Emperor's activities at Pearl Harbor was bombed remain, in the remote language of the imperial court, "above nine layers of clouds." The one man who knows just what took place, and apparently recorded it at length, is the Marquis Koichi Kido, who was the lord keeper of the privy seal and almost constantly with Hirohito.

NOW WAR CRIMINAL

But Kido is a convicted war criminal now serving time in Tokyo's Sugamo Prison, and his diary has never been released by American authorities.

At his trial Kido told of going to the palace at 2:40 a.m. Tokyo time, in answer to a call from foreign minister Togo, who had received a note from U.S. ambassador Joseph C. Grew, asking for a pre-dawn audience with the emperor.

The conjecture is that Hirohito eventually became a top figure in the war until he, an early-gian-government-in-exile, and living in a flat in Finsbury, London. He, too, learned have proceeded to various same. It from the BBC broadcast at 9 o'clock that night.

"I remember my stupefied shock," he said at Paris today. "I waited impatiently for more news, which his country had embarked. When that came I turned to my mistake the Axis ever made!"

Rebel Coalitionist W. A. C. Bennett Now Social Credit's House Leader

By T. A. MYERS

Rebel Coalitionist W. A. C. Bennett yesterday joined the Social Credit movement and automatically became the party's house leader.

Mr. Bennett is the only member the Social Credit party has ever had in the B.C. legislature.

But whether he will become provincial political leader of the party is another question. It will be answered at a Social Credit convention to be held early in 1952.

Mr. Bennett is the South Okanagan M.L.A. who stomped out of Coalition at the last regular session of the legislature. He indicated he would form a new political party.

Yesterday he announced he had given up this plan and had picked up the Social Credit flag.

Mr. Bennett is expected to bid for official ratification as political leader when the party meets next year. The convention was ordered by a Social Credit general meeting last month.

Bennett may face competition in his drive for the leadership. Victoria Social Creditors last week indicated they would name a candidate at a meeting Dec. 18.

Mr. Bennett's announcement was greeted with jubilation by party officials.

Lyle Wicks, president of the B.C. Social Credit League, said in Vancouver: "It is a pleasure for me to welcome to the ranks of Social Credit a man who, particularly during the last 12 months, has given such stirring evidence of his ability, integrity and public spiritedness."

Soldier Faces Court Martial

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (CP)—John Murray Steeves of Moncton, N.B., a sapper with the 57th Independent Field Squadron of the Royal Canadian Engineers in Korea, has been charged with the murder of a South Korean civilian, army headquarters announced today.

He also faces additional charges of attempted murder and wounding. He will be tried by a general court martial December 15.

The charges follow an incident on the night of September 17 last, in the village of Hwang Bang Ni, in Kyong Ki Province, South Korea, when a South Korean farmer, Shin Yong Dok, was shot and his son wounded.

"I am particularly pleased that of the local Social Creditors of he joined as he did: through the Kelowna." Ron Worley, Victoria Social local affiliated group in Kelowna. (Mr. Bennett's home town). Mr. Bennett said Mr. Bennett Social Credit, he was glad to had "come in a democratic man, welcome Mr. Bennett who had her, from the bottom, with the quit the Conservative party and confidence and understanding Coalition to do the same thing."

Candidates Heated, Humorous at Forum

book," said Mr. Haigh waving a copy of the 1951 budget. "I think the council should not be reduced."

A question asking each candidate what he considered the proper "prerequisite" for a mayor provided a sideshow.

Dr. J. D. Hunter led off with his list which included experience, financial knowledge, no promises, no "hair-brained" schemes, both feet on the ground and good sense.

BUSINESS FIRST

"I think business experience is the first," said Mr. Kent. "I have more than any lawyer or doctor has had. I don't know what Mr. Haigh's business is but I can perhaps guess."

"Well, I never had anything to do with selling musical instruments," said Mr. Haigh. "I have more practical knowledge than any of these three combined and I'm willing to prove it on a trial basis."

"You've had all these things on the council and look at the state of things," he added.

C. L. Harrison's answer was short:

"Is there one lawyer on the council that got you into this mess?" he asked the merry audience.

On the subject of amalgamation, Dr. Hunter felt that "co-operation and mutual understanding" were first necessary. He cited the beginnings of inter-municipal co-operation in the library board, the water board and the union board of health.

Mr. Kent said that the matter had been previously approached in "the wrong way."

"Oak Bay has been a little bit difficult," he said. "They shy away from any suggestion along this line. The Oak Bay council has perhaps been a little jealous of its high-toned position."

Mr. Haigh said, "We should get our own house in order before we invite Saanich and Oak Bay to join us."

"He's right," said Mr. Harrison. "Show the outside municipalities we won't continue to make blunder after blunder and they will want to share our fortunes with us."

On the arena question, Dr. Hunter felt there had been "too many cooks" and the first mistake was the citizens' committee plan to spread work among the local men.

FIRST MISTAKE

"Those people collected $65,000 towards the cost, therefore they had some say, but I feel this was the first mistake."

Despite everything said, he added, "I still say we have a good arena and a good commission to run it."

Mr. Kent said the city was mistaken for ever having gone into the arena business at the time.

"I was in the army in 1914 and, frankly, I was a little surprised at that time that the citizens of Victoria were talking about an arena," he said. "You got yourselves into it. You got more than you bargained for."

Questioned on his plans concerning the B.C. Terms of Union, Mr. Harrison assured the audience he could bring the city "its proper due."

"In 1871 a solemn bargain was made. It will be honored if we have honor in Canada and I think we have. A bargain is a bargain until it is fulfilled. Why don't you try it and find out. It will be a great thing for Victoria."

A tricky question was then put to Dr. Hunter: "Just what does the city manager do?"

The council, he answered, makes policy and the city manager carries it out.

"I don't expect the city manager to pull rabbits out of the hat right away. It won't be long before you see result of his labors. You voted to have one and we have a good man," he said.

Everyone had a crack at this one.

Mr. Kent referred to his earlier efforts to start "the ball rolling" regarding a city manager.

"He has saved you many times what you pay him. He is one of the busiest men in the city hall," said Mr. Kent. He cited where the manager (Cecil Wyatt) had set up "a proper accounting system" revalued city properties and brought about better labor relations with city hall employees.

Mr. Haigh had other ideas: "I don't think the city manager has done anything for the city but to make this book as difficult to understand as possible," he said, again waving the 1951 budget in front of the laughing crowd.

Mr. Harrison recalled that a proposal to hire a city manager was twice turned down previously and the last referendum on the subject was "rushed through."

"I would not ask his removal because you voted him in. But I don't think you understood the purpose of this and other referendums. This is why I will have a 'citizens' hour,'" he said.

On the Point Ellice bridge, Dr. Hunter gave a detailed report of its history. He said he would not comment on future plans until he had studied the Carruthers Report.

Mr. Harrison said he believed the bridge would be "part of your tip Island highway."

"If so, then your provincial government should build you a new bridge. Do not build for the present. Wait until we settle the question of the Island Highway," he said.

Mr. Kent said he favored renovating the bridge but was "unalterably opposed to going into any other unnecessary debt."

"You don't have to be an engineer to see the bridge and the supports are basically solid and sound," he said.

The meeting was arranged by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the candidates were introduced by A. H. Heaslip.

Pint Parade Draws Radio Comment

Victoria's pint parade show slated for this Sunday has drawn the attention of Toronto, CBC commentator Kate Atken and will receive a boost from her at 9:30 this morning over CJVI.

Officials of the local radio station said her interest probably stems from the fact that the unusual method of collecting blood for the Red Cross bank is being used for the first time in Canada. The Red Cross is sponsoring a variety show at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Odeon Theatre, but admission will be gained by signing a pledge to give a pint of blood, rather than the usual custom of paying.

Billed on the show are 11 of Victoria's top professional acts who are donating their services as are all others connected with the project.

It was reported last night that so far 320 pledges have been received. Pledges are being accepted at Red Cross headquarters on Fort Street and at the Odeon Theatre.

A four-day blood clinic will be held at Red Cross House during the week following Sunday's show.

The French poet, Etienne Jodelle, who died in 1573, aimed at substituting classical drama for the mystery plays then popular.

YOUR SAVING IS VITAL IN Arresting Inflation

... We stand at present in need of a great re-emphasis on the place and value of saving as a force on the side of stability. I am well aware that high taxation and high living costs make saving difficult. I am also aware that rising prices have taken a toll in the form of reduced value of past savings.

"But the hard fact is that if savings in money form fail to keep pace with that portion of our national output going into capital construction we are, to that extent, widening the gap between spending power and consumer goods...

"What must be done is to see to it that national policies recognize fully that saving must be made worthwhile."

Farmland Yields Oil After 40-Year Hunt

EDMONTON, Nov. 6 (CP).—Oil riches begin at 80 for W. B. Chamberlain.

A major oil find on his farm two miles east of Edmonton was announced today.

But behind the happy announcement were thoughts of what might have been had the oil riches come at 40. For Mr. Chamberlain has been searching for oil on his farm since 1911.

He has a 12 1/2 per cent royalty interest in the newly-discovered well.

The quest began in 1911 when natural gas became evident while he was sinking a shallow water well. Mrs. Chamberlain's brothers, B. R. and E. H. Campbell, were convinced that oil underlay the rich farming land. They joined with the Chamber-

Today's Dollar

MONTREAL, Dec. 6 (CP).—The United States dollar today closed at 2 1/2 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 9/16 from Wednesday's close. That is, it took $1.02 1/2 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.88 1/2, down 1/16 from Wednesday.

London Market Shows Slump

LONDON, Dec. 6 (Reuters).—Sellers today renewed their attack on British government funds and prices slumped by one-half to one point. Volume of genuine sales was swollen by bear selling.

Price ranges in gilt-edged were wider than usual, and at one time the market was unwilling to take stock. This weakness was reflected by a lowering of prices in all other sections of the London exchange. Falls in industrials were not so severe. Textiles were the chief sufferers and showed declines of a few pence to one shilling.

Although leading oil shares were marked fractionally lower the section was not seriously tested. Fresh liquidation in Japanese bonds created widespread dullness in the foreign section. Minings followed the prevailing trend and were dull.

London Market Business Notes

EDMONTON, Nov. 6 (CP).—Oil wells were completed in Alberta in November at a rate of more than 4 1/2 a day. It was the highest rate attained by the province's oil and gas industry.

About 58 per cent of November's completions resulted in oil production. Ten per cent were gas wells and 32 per cent dry holes. These figures represent 144 wells, 83 oil wells, 15 gas wells and 46 dry holes.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (CP).—The Bank of Canada today announced that tenders have been accepted for $75,000,000 worth of Dominion of Canada treasury bills due next March 7. Average discount price of the accepted bids was $92.77455 and the average yield .906 per cent.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (CP).—Factory shipments of Canadian-made motor vehicles during October increased over the preceding month but were below the corresponding 1950 month for the fifth consecutive time, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Shipments of Canadian-made vehicles during the month totalled 32,462 compared with 35,573 in October last year. This brought the cumulative total for the 10 months ending October to 362,225 units, ending 1950 in the similar period of 1950.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (Reuters).—British banks have agreed to work towards charging a minimum interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent on business borrowing from banks. The normal rate for personal borrowers will be raised to 5 per cent.

TORONTO, Dec. 6 (CP).—Saskatchewan may replace the Belgian Congo as the world's chief supplier of uranium, Hans Lundberg, Swedish geophysicist and mining engineer, said last night at a meeting of 500 student members of the University

New Car Insurance Policy Plugs Loophole

"Bright-sharp-types" will find that one of their favorite loopholes will have been eliminated when they apply for the new automobile insurance policy that becomes effective Jan. 1, 1952.

This is what Vancouver insurance expert K. G. Roberts told 100 members of the Victoria Insurance Agents Association last night at a special meeting in Loughheed Banquet Hall to discuss the new car policy.

Roberts was the section of the old policy which asked the applicant to list "any" accident in which he had been involved.

He said that certain persons who had been involved during their driving careers in several accidents interpreted the "any" to mean any one accident. Then, he added, they would list just a single accident.

ALL ACCIDENTS

"This won't be possible under the new policy because it is clearly stated that all accidents must be listed," the insurance man said.

Among other changes listed by Mr. Roberts as he went over a lengthy sample copy of the new policy item by item, were:

Applicant must now state that he is not only the owner of the car but that it is also registered in his name. Mr. Roberts said that "for reasons of their own" many car owners had the vehicles registered under another person's name.

New policy does not ask the question: "Is your automobile paid for?"

Driving to and from work will be considered as pleasure use and not business use.

Trucks noted by their use rather than their name.

SECOND GUEST

Second guest speaker was A. R. Mackenzie, who, like Mr. Roberts, is a Vancouver expert and a member of the executive of the B.C. Insurance Agents' Association.

He said that despite strenuous efforts he was unable to find out what the new rates would be, but he was sure that they will be substantially increased in most categories.

Car owners will not have to make out applications for the new policy if the automobile is the same and the coverage is the same. Mr. Mackenzie said.

In the event of accidents, he added, old policies will be interpreted in the light of the new.

Speakers were welcomed and the meeting was chaired by association president H. R. Brown.

New "Open" Status Would Advance P.C.L. Toward Majors

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5 (UPI)—The Pacific Coast League today announced a new "open" status for its players.

If the major leagues also approve the action of the National Association of Minor Leagues, the P.C.L. would be formally applying for "open" status with partial relief from the draft in 1959.

The action of the National Association of Minor Leagues, the P.C.L. would be formally applying for "open" status with partial relief from the draft in 1959.

Commissioner Ford Frick summed up the minors' action on the "open" classification as a "very wise thing."

Unable to agree on a new high school rule governing signing of schoolboys, the minors deferred action until 9:30 a.m. (EST), tomorrow on a compromise of three proposals.

UNUSUAL APPEARANCE

Commissioner Ford Frick made an unusual appearance before the golden jubilee convention to urge the minors to adopt some version of a high school rule. He said the minors must not offend the general public by letting the current rule expire Dec. 31 without adopting a new one.

In a day jammed with action after a week-long lull, the minors also voted to rule out the 24-hour recall of optioned players by major league clubs.

The vote on the 24-hour recall was a confusing retake. First they fell one short of putting it over the required three-fourths majority with a 35-13 "yes" count.

Bob Finch, national association publicity director, barely finished announcing the defeat of the amendment to reporters when he rushed back from the closed session to say the measure had been reconsidered and adopted with 41 "yes" votes.

WOULD KILL RECALL

If the majors follow through next Monday and pass this amendment, considered unlikely by many baseball men, clubs no longer would be able to shuttle players from the majors to minors on 24-hour recall. Once sent down the player must remain for the entire minor league season.

This matter is closely tied in with an amendment to cut player limits passed at today's meeting. Like all other major-minor matters, this is subject to approval by the majors at their joint meeting in New York Monday.

Major league clubs would cut from 25 to 23 men and all class limits, except B, would be sliced.

It was the feeling of some big league clubs, in private conversation, that they could not afford to take a chance on cutting to 23 and also restrict themselves to no 24-hour recall on optioned players. As a result both proposals may be defeated Monday.

Coast Leaguers were jubilant over their victory in the long fight for special recognition. They expect to apply "right away" for recognition as an "open" class league, one cut higher than Triple A.

PLAYER WAIVER

An "open" league would be able to keep its players out of the major league draft if the player waives his rights. One player—first baseman Chuck Connors of Los Angeles—already has said he would be willing to sign such a waiver.

Players in an "open" league would not be subject to draft even if they didn't waive their rights—until they had five years pro ball experience. Triple A players can be drafted after four years. The draft price would be increased from $10,000 to $15,000.

The "open" league would have first draft rights from lower classifications but would not be permitted to accept players on option from the majors.

There now is pending a new major league rule that would set up steps for advancing an "open" league into a major league. No minor league could meet the requirements at this time. This new rule to move up from Triple A to the "open" classification, a league must have an aggregate population of 10,000,000, a total park capacity of 120,000, no salary limit and an average attendance of 2,500,000 over the past five years.

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE

Requirements for advancing from "open" to major would call for total population of 15,000,000, half park in each city with 25,000 capacity and an average attendance of 3,500,000.

An amendment to restore the old ban on radio broadcasts and telecasts within 50 miles of a minor league park, unless given permission, was defeated, although there were 33-14-17 votes. It needed 36 to pass.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, president of the Western League, which submitted the amendment, warned the delegates that all lawyers and department of justice officials be considered tomorrow that would ask the major leagues to split their radio television receipts with the minors.

He claimed the minors suffered severe damage through broadcasts and telecasts, that the minors received $3,364,000 in 1950 and $3,377,000 in 1951 for radio and TV and that the minors should be reimbursed.

New Players May Show In Flaatten Benefit Match

Victoria United and New Westminster Royals will each have an opportunity of trying out new players when they clash in an exhibition soccer game at Royal Athletic Park tomorrow.

All proceeds will go to the benefit fund for Einar Flaatten, United's injured Norwegian forward.

United will give Norm Dickie and Ian Holroyd, two juveniles, good trials, but will likely start the same line-up that defeated Collingwood in Anderson Cup play last week. Joe Travis will be in goal with Bill Hope and Joe Robbins forming the fullback combination.

TWO SCOT WINGERS

Royals will use the game to try out two Scottish wingers who arrived in Vancouver recently from Glasgow. They are Bob Nicols, 26, and Tom Graham, 28.

Nicols played with Kilmarnock in the Scottish League but quit because he found it impossible to play on Saturdays. He also had offers from Stirling Albion and Dumbarton.

Graham was a member of the Junior Pollock team of Glasgow and had a chance to try out with Hearts. He played in the R.A.F. during the war and played in Winnipeg for Carberry All-Stars in 1944.

Royals will also probably use Tommy Druce at centre forward. The former United star was signed by the Fraser City squad this week.

The game will also serve as a conditioner for United, which faces a possible two-week lay-off before their Anderson Cup semi-final match at the end of the month.

United must await the outcome of three other quarter-finals. St. Andrews meet Royals on Dec. 15, Firefighters oppose Dominion Hotel of the Vancouver and District League on Dec. 22 and North Shore plays Vancouver City on Dec. 26. The semi-finals will be played Dec. 29 and Jan. 1.

St. Andrew Loses Players By Suspension

VANCOUVER, Dec. 6 (CP)—Two members of the fourth-place St. Andrews of the Pacific Coast Soccer League have received suspensions from the B.C. Soccer Commission.

Inside-left George Steele drew a month and full back Nick Glover will be out for a week.

Steele's suspension came as a result of inattention to repeated warnings not to talk back to referees. Two weeks ago he had a heated debate with referee George Barnes in Victoria where he said some very nasty things about the official's eyesight.

He had previously been warned to cease these outbursts, or else. One month was the "or else."

Glover drew his sentence for acting, not orating. He hit Victoria's Cedric Robb in a fit of temper.

Manager Tommy McNeil will use Jackie Jones to replace Glover and Neil McKechnie will take over Steele's spot for Saturday's game.

Strong Minor XI's Set For Benefit Preliminary

Harris Cycles and Army, Navy and Air Force Vets will be fielding their strongest clubs when they meet in a Division II soccer match as a preliminary to the Victoria United-New Westminster Royals benefit game at Royal Athletic Park.

The preliminary contest will start at 1 p.m. with the feature attraction beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Toronto Maple Leafs have traded pitcher Elmer Singleton to San Francisco Seals for outfielder Neil Sheridan.

Doubles Upset Marks Badminton Tournament

Most favorites continued to advance as the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club's annual badminton championships entered the semi-final stages at the Amphion Street Hall last night.

Bill Dunbar and Andy Pithkeley, fourthseeded in the men's doubles, were eliminated by the rising team of Larry Parlow and Peter Peacock, who made few mistakes to win in straight games, 17-15, 15-9.

In the women's singles, popular Joy Wasson continued her winning ways by defeating Betty Weighman in straight games, 11-4, 11-9.

Richard Pollard advanced to the final of the junior boys' singles by defeating Ken Birch, 15-6, 15-12.

In the women's open doubles, top-seeded Carol Chalmers and Clare Kind were extended by Joyce Folbigg and Joan Rothe before winning out, 18-14, 15-5.

Today's draw follows:

7:00 p.m.—Libbe Beck vs. Jean Bell; Bill Dunbar vs. James Parlow (Final Girls Junior Singles).

7:30 p.m.—Jim Wells vs. Stan Richards; Joy Wasson vs. Clare Kind; Arlie Morrison and Bill Dunbar vs. Joan Taylor and Len Tolson.

8:00 p.m.—Jack Parker vs. Vince Martin.

Mr. America To Match Holds With McDonald

The feature event of tomorrow night's wrestling card at the Bay Street Armory brings together Eric "The Great" Pedersen and Jack McDonald, powerful Oregon logger.

Making his initial Victoria appearance, Pedersen will display his impressive muscles which recently won him the title of Mr. America. McDonald is well known to Victoria fans for his recent matches with Chief Thunderbird.

Jack Kiser and Con Bruno will come to grips in the semi-main event while the special event has Kamel Mahmoud meeting John Cretoir.

The opening event will see the return of Victoria's wrestling policeman Ken Williamson, who will match holds with newcomer Fred Parrott.

Bill Cook to Be Ranger Coach As Neil Colville Resigns Post

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (CP)—Neil Colville, silver-haired veteran of 14 years in the National Hockey League, resigned today as coach of New York Rangers and was replaced by Bill Cook, one of the all-time great right wingers.

Colville, 37-year-old native of Edmonton, announced at a press conference that he was quitting because of Rangers' poor showing this season. They are in last place and have lost three straight games.

He added that his health was a factor—he has been on a milk diet lately—and that he now will go home to Edmonton to rest. He said he has no further hockey plans this season although he hasn't given up the game.

Frank Boucher, general manager of the Rangers, followed with the announcement that he would name Bill Cook as coach.

Cook, 33-year-old native of New York, played for the Rangers from 1935 to 1941. He was captain of the team and played an important part in leading them to the Stanley Cup in 1940 and 1941.

When the league disbanded at the end of the 1934-35 season, Bill and his brother Ron, were sold to the Rangers. When they were asked to select a good centre to complete a forward line, they immediately chose Boucher.

Despite his late start, Cook was 30 years old when he broke into the NHL. He remains the tenth highest goal getter in league history. He was captain of the Rangers for 10 seasons and played an important part in leading them to the Stanley Cup in 1940 and 1941.

BILL COOK

Cook, right winger on the famous New York line with Boucher and brother Ron Cook, would take over the job.

TO FLY EAST Cook will pilot Quakers against Edmonton Flyers at Edmonton tomorrow night and then fly to New York in time to take over Rangers for their Sunday night game with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Flood Damage Total To Be Known Soon

Extent of the bill Central Saanich Reeve Jimmy Pickles intends to send to Ottawa for repairs to storm-battered Is and View Beach will be known within a few days.

The reeve said yesterday the federal government was expected to cover the cost of flood damage to Is and View Beach.

Reeve Pickles said that the damage to Is and View Beach was estimated at more than two feet of water was covered the houses just west of the beach.

Upon checking the damage, the reeve said the bill for the damage to Is and View Beach was estimated at more than two feet of water was covered the houses just west of the beach.

The water inundated more than 300 acres of low-lying farmland through a 200-foot concrete wall of seawall near Telegraph Road.

Reeve Pickles contends the breach resulted from a storm which hit the beach during the second World War.

The federal department of charge of land said it had ordered the national reconstruction bureau to provide a low-lying way on the seawall. A large breach a large was made along this path so that large pieces could be carried out safely, he said.

NOT RESPONSIBLE

He said the reconstruction bureau was responsible for the result of such action.

Telegraph Road and was covered by more than two feet of water at high tide. The seawall was built by the M. W. L. Construction Co. and was built in 1945. The reeve said the damage to Is and View Beach was estimated at more than two feet of water was covered the houses just west of the beach.
